Deco Bahamas and Colonials Measuring Guide

Bahama Shutter: Measure the window and add 2 inches to both the width and the height.

Round up to the closest height on the graph below.

If an exact height is required and is not listed on the chart below the blades can be cut down for an additional cost. Esthetically, full blades are preferred.

Please note the number of spans. Spans are the divisions between the blades.

The maximum span is 28 inches.

Colonial Shutter: Measure the window and add 2 inches to both the width and the height.

Round up to the closest height on the graph below.

If an exact height is required and is not listed on the chart below the blades can be cut down for an additional cost. Esthetically, full blades are preferred.

Please note the number of spans. Spans are the widths of each section of the colonial.

The maximum span is 28 inches.

(There is a maximum of two spans per side of an opening, for a total width of 112 inches.)
